

Anat Ben-David is a senior lecturer in the department of Sociology, Political Science and Communication. She is co-founder of the Open

University's Open Media and Information Lab (OMILab). Focusing on New Media, her primary research interests are history and geopolitics of the Web, Digital STS, social and political studies of social media, and digital and computational methods for Web research.