

Paula Kiel is a PhD candidate in the department of Media and Communications at the London School of Economics and Political Science. Her PhD project explores contemporary mediations of death within Western societies through the study of services offering to enable post-mortem online communication. Her research interests include: death online, computer-mediated communication, visual media, technological innovation, multimodal analysis, and media and everyday life. Her paper “The Emerging Practices of the Collective Afterlife: Multimodal Analysis of Websites for Post-mortem Digital Interaction” won the Best Student Paper Award at the 2017 Association of Internet Researchers (AoIR) conference.

For more information visit:

<http://onlineafterdeath.weebly.com>

<http://www.lse.ac.uk/media@lse/WhosWho/PhdResearchers/PaulaKiel.aspx>

<https://www.facebook.com/onlineafterdeath>