

Omer Y. Pelled holds an L.L.B (2012) (magna cum laude), LL.M. (2013) (summa cum laude) and a Ph.D. (Law) (2018), all from Tel-Aviv University Law School. Omer is currently a Post-doctoral fellow at the Department of Industrial Engineering at Tel-Aviv University and he teaches the course “advanced topics in torts” at the Tel-Aviv University Law School. Omer received several grants and awards for his research, including the wolf’s foundation scholarship for excellent doctoral candidates (2017) and the Cegla Prize for best article published by a Ph.D. candidate (2016). Omer’s research focuses on the optimal remedial regime under factual uncertainty. The research uses economical tools to determine how the law should place liability in order to create optimal incentives.